Deacon Alanson O. Holstead was major militia for a long time, and was an active and intelligent man. In Church-work, he was one of the main pillars of the Eldale Baptist Church, which he assisted in organizing and building and in which he served as a deacon until his death. His children were David W., Catharine (Mrs. Alexander Coleman), Rachel (Mrs. Cyril Peck), John, Nathaniel, Rebecca (Mrs.
Samuel Arnold), Margaret
(Mrs. Sylvanus Doolittle), Charles, Silas, Mary, Sidney, and Hugh

RMS - p. 794

Deacon Olafson D. Halstead's father was John Halstead (m. Rachel Knapp), who was born 12-08-1821. His early days were spent upon the farm and in the saw mill of his father. He learned the trade of a blacksmith and carried on that business at Elkdale for about a year; he was a farmer on the Elk Mountain three years, before selling out in 1847. After a couple years' blacksmithing at the Corners he began a mercantile business there, and, for a period of 17 years was a main instrument in drawing business and residents to this pleasant village. He was the first postmaster of the place, and served as such for 16 years. In 1865 he retired from the store business in order to give entire attention to the growing demands of his live-stock branch; and in this department his close and intelligent care and judicious management have built up a large and profitable enterprise...

... In 1823, Gould Phinney and Horace G. Phelps had a mill and other enterprises at what was known as Phinneytown. Later it was called East Clifford, and at present is properly known as Elkdale ... The post office was established at the store of G. G. Wells in December 1877 as a private office but since 1881 has been a regular office in the postal service. The firm of Gould & Phelps not only operated the mills but also distilled liquor & had a store. In 1831 the McAlla Brothers (John, James, and William) became the owners of the mills and distillery, which they carried on extensively, the latter until 1857. In its best days, the mill had 3 runs of stones and had a large capacity...

the Tunkhannock, about a mile below the deep valley, now styled "the City." [Blackman - p. 385]

Ezra S. Lewis -

RMS-789- "In 1816 they (Amos Morse and his son, William A.) sold the farm to Ezra Lewis, and soon after they left the county. Ezra Lewis was a son of Elder Gideon Lewis who came to Clifford, it is claimed, in February, 1800, and rolled up a log house on the Tunkhannock, on the farm afterwards occupied by P. R. Stewart. Having no nails, the shingles were held on by poles withed together. He cleared up a large place and paid for it several times, but finally lost it through defective titles. As a Baptist preacher he preached about the country and was widely known among the early pioneers. His family consisted of children named Polly, who married Elder William Robinson; Betsey, Sally, Abner, Ezra, Levi and Lyman. Levi had a family of ten children, among them being Oris, living in Thurston, and Ezra S., living on the old Morse farm, noted above.

RMS-795- "In 1831 the McCalla Brothers (John, James and William) became the owners of the mill [at Elkhdale] and distillery, which they carried on extensively, the latter until 1857. In its best days the mill had three runs of stones and had a large capacity. In 1862 it was owned by William McCalla, who died that fall from injuries received in the mill. It is still owned by his heirs but is operated in a small way, only. The saw-mill and distillery buildings have been removed."

ECB - p. 391:

"Richard Meredith was the first person who applied for naturalization in Susquehanna County. He was born in the parish of Burborn, County of Kent, England, July 1773; sailed from Liverpool, June, 1808, and landed in New York the September following. His application to the Court was made January, 1814; but it does not appear that he received his papers until February, 1822."

Asahel Norton

- not buried in Elkdale Cemetery
- Asahel was one of the 6 sons and three daughters of "a widow Norton" who came to Clifford Township about 1802; ECD (388): "Asahel was the first settler at the 'city,' (now Elkdale)."
- in 1807, James Wells "owned ^{the} half of a grist-mill near the present site of McAlla's. His first mill had been destroyed by a freshet; Asahel Norton was his partner in putting up the second, which was also carried off in a similar manner, before 1813. He [James Wells] built a house with a sloping roof and well-guarded porch, and was then living in it; it is now occupied by Mrs. McAlla." (ECD - pp 389-390).
